CBC Ladies Bible Conference: This one day Bible conference at Central Bible Chapel in Millbrook, AL will provide an opportunity for fellowship, ministry ideas, and spiritual insight. Speakers Kem Schneider and Vickie Gaynier will focus on hospitality. The conference will be held on April 5 from 9:30 to 3:30. Contact Kathy Leach at 334-365-3374 for more info.

"What doest thou here, Elijah?" Every syllable was pregnant with meaning and with rebuke. Life is a great doing; not inaction or inglorious repose. "What doest thou?"—thou, my vice-regent in these degenerate days —thou whom I have honored above thy fellows, and who hast had proof upon proof of my faithfulness? "What doest thou here" —here in this desolate spot; away from duty; the Baal altars Go ye also into the vineyard; and whatsoever is right, I will give you.

Matthew 20:4

rebuilding; my own altar in ruins; the sword of persecution unsheathed, and the bleating flock left by thee, coward shepherd, to the ravening wolf? Here Elijah missed the opportunity of his life; it never returned to him again. God permitted him to cast his mantle on Elisha, but when he came to the very place where God would have used him mightily, he fled like a coward. Many of us miss grand opportunities. If God calls you to some service, do not stop to discuss whether it is a higher service or not; leave that to Him. If God calls you, say, "Here am I; send me." "What doest thou here?" Are you out of communion with God? Has some cursed sin come in and separated you from God, is your life like a blasted tree in the desert without any power? If so, ask Him to forgive you. Return with your whole heart unto Him, and He will use you mightily.
